The files of the Alumni Catalog Office failed to reflect YEAGLEY's membership in any campus organization except that of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity.

Mr. W. B. REA, Associate Dean of Students, University Hall, University of Michigan Campus, searched his records against YEAGLEY's name, which failed to reflect that YEAGLEY was a member of any political organization while a student at the University of Michigan. Mr. REA advised that he did not recall YEAGLEY personally, but that if he belonged to any campus organization it would be reflected in his file.

Miss CATHERINE MURRAY, Recorder, University of Michigan Law School, produced YEAGLEY's record which reflected that he entered the Law School in September, 1931 and maintained a "C plus" average while attending Law School. He received his LLB Degree in June of 1934.

Professor PAUL A. LEDY, Secretary of the Law School, advised that he recalled YEAGLEY only slightly, but stated that from a review of his records in the files it was his opinion that YEAGLEY's law school record was far better than his college work and was entirely satisfactory from a scholarship standpoint. He stated further that the files failed to contain any derogatory information regarding YEAGLEY, and that his conduct was apparently satisfactory.

Dean BLYTHE STASSON, Dean of Law School, University of Michigan Campus, advised that he did not recall YEAGLEY while he was a student at the University. He stated he could furnish no information regarding him other than that which appeared in the files.

He advised YEAGLEY conducted his assignments in a very satisfactory manner and impressed him as a good, loyal American at all times. Major JOSEPH A. AVERY of the Judge Advocate General's Office, Munitions Building, stated that he has known the applicant for a good many years and is well acquainted with him, as well as with his family background. Major AVERY stated that the applicant's father is a well known practicing lawyer in South Bend, Indiana, of excellent standing in the community, and well known for his civic interests. Major AVERY states that the applicant's father is an excellent lawyer, having been retained in various important cases.

Concerning the applicant, Major AVERY said that he possesses an excellent personality and is a good mixer, having a physical appearance which is also pleasing. Concerning his physical abilities, Major AVERY said that he did not think that the applicant was particularly athletically inclined although he was well built and seemed physically fit. However, he stated that the applicant did wear glasses, and his eyes may possibly be below standard. Major AVERY stated that the applicant has very lately been elected as the president of the St. Joe (Indiana) County Bar Association, which is unusual because of his age.

Concerning the morals, character, and integrity of the applicant, Major AVERY said that these were all of uniform excellence and continued that he knew of no other young lawyer to whom he would want to give as high a recommendation in this respect as YEAGLEY. Major AVERY pointed out that shortly after war was declared, the applicant was possessed with the urge to find himself something to do for his country, and as a result, came to Washington with a desire to get a commission in either the Army or the Navy. He was unable to get a commission in the Army due to the fact that the Army is taking no legal talent at this time, and Major AVERY did not know definitely why applicant was not able to get into the Navy.

THOMAS BATH, Secretary to Congressman ROBERT A. GRANT of Indiana, was interviewed in the House Office Building where he is employed. BATH stated that he had known the applicant since their school days when they both attended the South Bend schools, where they were very good friends. BATH stated that the applicant was popular in school, having friends among all types of students and being a good mixer and a friend to everybody, although he was from the "upper crust" of South Bend. BATH seemed especially warm on this point, as he described himself to have come from "the other side of the tracks", and had yet been a warm personal friend of the applicant.

BATH continued that the applicant's father is a prominent South Bend lawyer who possesses an excellent reputation. The family is considered very highly in South Bend, and they are well known for their civic-mindedness. He stated that the applicant, as well as the family, are all noted for their high integrity and morals; and he continued that the applicant, although he might take a social drink once in awhile, was certainly not a man who would be found to have excesses in this matter. BATH stated that the applicant has an excellent personality and is a very good mixer. As an example of this, he pointed to the fact that YEAGLEY has within the past few weeks been elected president of the St. Joe County Bar Association. BATH added that he is very young for such a position, but that he is popular enough with all the groups and well enough thought of by them to have achieved this honor.

As an interesting sidelight, BATH states that the applicant showed the fact that he has the courage of his convictions because upon his election as president of the Bar Association, he openly stated when accepting the position that he had been elected because the younger members of the Association felt that certain changes were needed and that they proposed to have their chance to make them. BATH also pointed out the fact that the applicant is politically active in the Republican circles of St. Joe County, although he has promised his father that he would never run for any office so long as the father is living. BATH states, however, that because of the personality and ability of the applicant, he is already a force in the Republican politics of his county.

Regarding the appearance of applicant, BATH stated that YEAGLEY is tall, although not particularly rugged. He is interested in most sports and indulges in quite a bit of golf and sailing. BATH stated that the applicant wears glasses at all times.

Regarding the patriotism of applicant, the reference said that this was certainly a strong point in his favor, as shortly after the outbreak of the war, YEAGLEY had come to Washington with the definite intention of finding some way in which he could serve his country in this emergency. He was unable to make connections with the Army or Navy, and at the advice of Congressman GRANT and other of his friends, had made an application to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. BATH continued that the applicant and his whole family are of very patriotic leanings. BATH stated that he felt that this was a very good point in applicant's favor due to the fact that he is over the immediate draft age of twenty-eight.

and because of his father's present ill health, it is doubtful whether he would be subject to the draft for quite some time to come. Mr. BATH did not know what organizations outside of the political affiliations the applicant was connected with, although he may be a member of the Elks and probably was a fraternity man in school. Neither did Mr. BATH know what the applicant's scholastic aptitude was in University although he considers YEAGLEY to be intelligent and probably at least in the upper half of his class. In conclusion, Mr. BATH stated that applicant, unlike so many other people at this time, had come to Washington saying that he was asking for advice as to how to help, rather than asking for help and political pull to get him something soft.

Mr. BATH stated that although Congressman GRANT had not been stated as a reference, he knew that Mr. GRANT would be very anxious to say a word in behalf of the applicant.

Congressman ROBERT A. GRANT (Indiana) stated that the applicant comes from a fine family, his father being a prominent South Bend lawyer. Concerning the applicant personally, Congressman GRANT stated that he can give him the finest recommendation concerning character, morals, integrity, and patriotism. GRANT continued that the applicant was most anxious to find some way to be of service during the war and that he personally had advised YEAGLEY that he could be of such service by joining the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Mr. GRANT explained that during the two weeks that YEAGLEY was in town, he had resided with Congressman GRANT at 3903 Pennsylvania Avenue, S. E.

It was noted in the reference letter that this address was given for the applicant, and no neighbors were found who knew YEAGLEY in this vicinity. This is of course explained by the fact that he was visiting with Congressman GRANT.

Mr. HOWARD C. PETERSEN, Special Assistant to the Under Secretary of War, stated that he had known the applicant during the time the two of them attended the University of Michigan Law School. PETERSEN described applicant as personable and intelligent. He did not believe the applicant received any scholastic honors in Michigan, but he considered him probably to be in the upper half of his class and well liked by his fellow lawyers in the Michigan Law School. PETERSEN said that he knows definitely the applicant comes from a good family, as the applicant's father is an outstanding lawyer in northern Indiana. PETERSEN said that the applicant, upon trying to get a commission in the Navy, was unable to do so because his eyes would not come up to the rigid Navy standard. PETERSEN concluded by saying that he could give the applicant the highest recommendation.

Senator RAYMOND WILLIS of Indiana stated that he has known applicant practically all of his life and knows him and his family to be of the highest rating concerning character, morals, and integrity. Senator WILLIS stated that when the applicant had come to Washington recently in order to find himself a place in the national defense picture that he had offered him a position as his chief secretary, but that YEAGLEY had declined to accept this inasmuch as he wished to get some work more closely allied with actual defense effort. Senator WILLIS stated that the patriotism of the applicant and his family is unquestioned and that on all counts, he can give the applicant the highest recommendation.

NEIGHBORHOOD

Mrs. ESTELLE BARBER, 3901 Pennsylvania Avenue, S. E., Mr. JOHN MALLOY, United States postal carrier No. 326, whose route covers the reference address, and Mr. WILLIAM LAWMAN, 2001 37th Avenue, S. E., resident agent for the Fairfax Village Apartments were all interviewed with negative results concerning the applicant. Mr. LAWMAN stated that the two apartments at the reference address were occupied by Congressman GRANT of Indiana and another Congressman and that possibly the applicant in question was merely visiting at one of these places. It will be noted in the interview of Congressman GRANT that this was the case.

The remainder of this investigation was conducted in August, 1948:

EMPLOYMENT

Personnel files at the Economic Cooperation Administration reflected that J. WALTER YEAGLEY had been appointed as a Consultant in the Security Division on June 28, 1948. This appointment had been canceled July 24, 1948, at which time he was re-appointed as Director of the Division of Investigation which position he now holds. All employment is satisfactory and no derogatory information was noted in the file.

WALTER L. RHINEHART, Deputy Director of the Personnel Division, Economic Cooperation Administration, advised that Mr. YEAGLEY's duty had been highly satisfactory, and that he was a man of commendable character, loyalty and reputation. He further stated that the applicant showed unusual ability in his work and had taken extremely deep interest in the job which he was doing.

J. P. GOYNE, Consultant with the National Security Council, Washington, D. C., stated he had known the applicant since 1944, and had worked quite closely with him in the Internal Security Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for over a year, and that he had recommended Mr. YEAGLEY to the Economic Cooperation Administration. He considered the applicant to be thoroughly American, a mature, well educated, industrious, and extremely competent man and qualified for the position which he now holds at ECA. He advised that he would give him an unqualified recommendation for the position.

NEIGHBORHOOD

At 3213 28th Street, S. E., Washington, D. C.

Mr. BRONSON PRICE, Apartment 1, stated that he had lived next door to the applicant since the Summer of 1945. He said he considered the applicant to be of good character and had never been given a reason to doubt his loyalty or patriotism to the Government, although at the present time they were not on the friendliest of terms due to an argument they had over a year ago. Mr. PRICE stated that the argument arose due to a misunderstanding between Mrs. YEAGLEY and himself whereupon Mr. YEAGLEY had spoken quite harsh words and the matter had been forgotten shortly thereafter. At the present time they were neighborly but do not associate in a social way.

Mrs. DOROTHY KAHM, Apartment 3, advised she had been acquainted with the YEAGLEYS for two and a half years, and although not associating with them very often socially, considered them to be very friendly, of excellent character, and about the nicest people in the entire neighborhood. She advised that they were very quiet, sincere, and considerate of others living near-by. She further advised that she was certain of their loyalty to the United States, and that they had never caused any trouble in the neighborhood as far as she knew.

JAMES PROCTOR, Janitor, stated that he knew the YEAGLEYS only by sight and was not well acquainted with them. However, he advised that they were people of the highest type, and as far as he knew they were of good character and loyalty.

At 3209 28th Street, S. E.

Mrs. L. K. FOSTER, Apartment 1, advised she had known the YEAGLEY family for a little over a year and a half, and that they were the nicest people she had ever been acquainted with. She advised that they were of the highest character and extremely loyal, and enjoyed an excellent reputation in that vicinity.
